

BASIC NEEDS

All human needs have basic needs of various kinds:

- (a) biological, such as nutrition, shelter, and clothes;
- (b) psychological, such as love, purpose, and freedom from anxieties;
- (c) social, such as companionship, the sense of belonging in some group, and that of being useful to it, and play;
- (d) cultural, such as seeing or hearing beautiful things, engaging in interesting conversation, and acquiring knowledge and skills.
