

AD RATIONAL REDESIGN OF SOCIETY ON THE BASIS OF COMMON-INTEREST VALUES

Rescher (1969 p. 100): "a rational social order should place great emphasis upon common-interest values. Justice, equality, and other supremely social values are of exactly this character." The reason is plain: the pursuit of competitive values, such as power, is destructive since they can only be attained at the expense of other people.

Inv 82855
FT 046