

PLEASURE & PAIN & MORAL FEELING

All moral feeling is one of pleasure or of pain. All moral conflict is a conflict between prospective pleasure and prospective pain — of self or others.

Since there is no morality without moral feelings, and since the latter are reducible to pleasure or pain, it follows that if we were unable to feel pleasure or pain, we would have no morals.

